Love The Oceans

Love The Oceans is a non-profit marine conservation organisation working in Guinjata Bay, Mozambique.

Love The Oceans hopes to protect the diverse marine life found here, including many species of sharks, rays and the famous humpback whales. Our goal is to achieve a Marine Protected Area for the Inhlabane Province in Mozambique, and achieve higher biodiversity whilst protecting endangered species.

We offer a cutting edge volunteer programme that gives individuals the chance to work alongside our marine biologists, helping with conservation and research. Volunteers gain experience through our research, education and benthic survey programmes over the space of 5 weeks. Our volunteers make up the team which we need in order to meet our aims. We hope that through research, teaching and diving we can move towards a more sustainable future.

Ordnance Survey

As Britain's mapping agency, we provide information that's vital to the nation's wellbeing. We work with governments, private industry, and individuals alike, since the data we produce touches and connects the lives of everyone in the country.

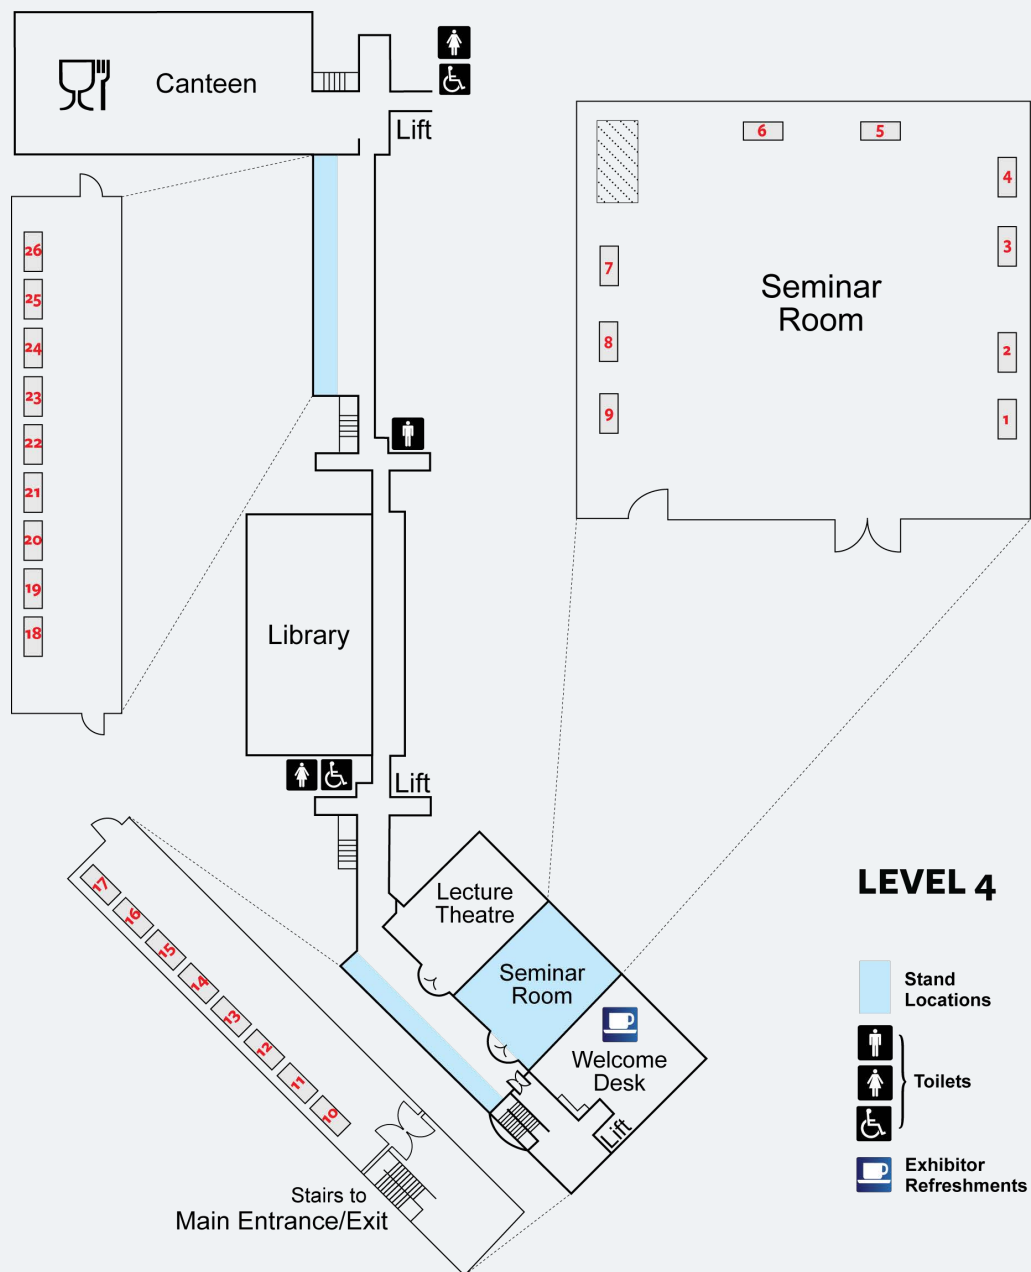

We make seven updates every minute of the day, mirroring our constantly changing landscape. The information we gather enables us to generate content that helps keep our nation, economy and infrastructure moving, but also provide our surveying expertise to countries around the world.

We are adventurous in the digital age, incisive in providing simple solutions to complex problems, restless because we know our work is never done, and true because we understand the importance of accuracy.

In short, we help others in finding a way.
