

The generation chain?

And (how) do we care?

How are our family experiences shaped by gender, social class, race/ethnicity and generation?

How could factors like these affect relationships between siblings?

And how do they colour attitudes to caring across the generations?
Where do young people's aspirations and sense of obligation to their elders come from?

Find out more in this lunchtime meeting with Rosalind Edwards, Professor of Sociology. This will be an extremely thought-provoking session, with relevance to both parents and carers.

Wednesday 17 December 12:30-13:30

Building 34 room 3019

Meet other parents and carers, and have lunch on us as well.

This session, hosted by P&CN member Stephen Kemp, is organised through the voluntary Parents and Carers Network with support from Diversity. To join P&CN or find out more, email diversity@soton.ac.uk

Parents and Carers Network welcomes all staff who look after children under 16, or care for adults unable to look after themselves due to age or disability:

<http://www.southampton.ac.uk/pcn>