Programme Overview

Brief outline of the programme

This programme combines the acquisition and consolidation of a high level of proficiency in three languages from a range which currently includes French, German, Spanish Portuguese, Italian, Russian, Chinese and Arabic with the opportunity to develop your knowledge, skills and competencies in a wide range of content areas and disciplinary strands. You will complement your language learning with modules on history and contemporary society literature and film, or linguistic studies. You can choose to combine these areas of study for a broad-based curriculum, or focus on the area that interests you most. The programme will provide you with an overarching learning environment solidly rooted in key disciplinary contexts such as linguistics, socio-historical studies, ethnography and cultural studies which are all central to the understanding of other societies and culture. You will become familiar with the scholarly discourse and debates about languages and cultures in a comparative context and be able to engage in expression, discussion and research in these subjects.

Special Features of the programme

Studying a language is an opportunity to open your mind to different peoples and cultures. The year abroad represents a key opportunity in this respect. As a Modern Languages student you will spend the third Part of the programme abroad in either a work placement, a British Council placement or at one of Southampton's partner universities. Whilst a degree combination that includes a language already enhances your employment prospects, our programme builds a broader range of study and communication skills that are vital for succeeding in the world of work. You will learn to absorb, analyse and assess a wide variety of viewpoints, express arguments in oral and written form, and to think and work independently and in cooperation with others. You will learn how to do primary research yourself, applying a range of concepts and methods.

Learning and teaching

Your knowledge and understanding will be developed through lectures and other tutor-led teaching. Lecturers will also give you extensive guidance, especially through reading lists and recommended reference and source material, the latter in the target languages wherever possible. Your learning will develop in the more student-led context of seminars, presentations, guided independent study and the preparation of written assignments. Your knowledge and understanding will be developed through lectures, tutorials, seminar presentations and discussions. Language classes are conducted in the target language to encourage familiarity with the language in the classroom. The four skills of reading, writing, listening and speaking are integrated with the study of key grammatical structures. A wide range of sources is used to encourage you to operate with different linguistic registers and acquire new vocabulary. Classes for content courses are conducted mainly in English, partly because of the level of sophistication required of you at university level in your engagement with academic debates and essay writing and partly to inculcate excellent oral and written communication skills in English in addition to those which you are simultaneously developing in other languages.

All courses use on-line material and some make use of discussion boards, where students and staff exchange knowledge and commentary. You will receive written, in-class and tutorial feedback, depending on the assignment type and this will enable you to identify the strengths and weaknesses of your knowledge and to continue to develop it effectively. You will take progressively more responsibility for your own learning and for the conduct of classes, as you move through the programme. You will spend your third year abroad either studying in a partner university, undertaking a relevant work placement or working for the British Council .

During the year abroad you will complete a research project in the target language and acquire more unfamiliar and unpredictable knowledge of the target language culture and society. This particular feature of our programmes will test your ability to work independently on a clearly focused task designed to increase and demonstrate your understanding of your place of residence abroad. The period abroad makes a particular important contribution to your growing intellectual independence.

Throughout the programme you will be encouraged to plan and manage your own learning building on the foundation established through your active participation in lectures and seminars. Essays and other short assignments ensure that the critical skills are developed and evaluated throughout the learning process. The strong disciplinary framework allows you to develop a wide range of skills and to specialise through their application during the year abroad. The foundation of the intellectual and transferable skills is laid progressively throughout the various stages of the programme with an increasing reliance on your personal research and self-direction.

Assessment

Your knowledge and understanding will be assessed in a variety of ways including examinations and coursework. Examinations test your ability to apply your knowledge and understanding, often asking you to present an argument within a very limited period of time. Coursework may include tasks such as critical literature reviews, case studies, essays, written reports, class presentations, portfolios and group projects. These tasks test your ability to apply your knowledge and understanding of a subject, normally with full access to reference sources, and to construct an in-depth argument over a much longer period of time. You will be able to track your progress from the introductory broadly contextualising modules in Part1 to more specialised and disciplinary focused modules in Part2, to a research project in Part3 and to research-based modules and the optional double-module dissertation in Part4.

Please note: As a research-led University, we undertake a continuous review of our programmes to ensure quality enhancement and to manage our resources. As a result, this programme may be revised during a student's period of registration, however, any revision will be balanced against the requirement that the student should receive the educational service expected. Please read our Disclaimer to see why, when and how changes may be made to a student's programme.

Programmes and major changes to programmes are approved through the University's programme validation process which is described in the University's Quality handbook.

Educational Aims of the Programme

The aims of the programme are to:

- To develop specific and advanced knowledge and understanding of key aspects of the culture and society you study and to enable you to 'read' and interpret different cultural traditions.

- To enable you to become a highly proficient linguist in at least one foreign language.
- To enable you to develop analytical, research and personal skills relevant to a range of careers and professions, including those for which languages are a key requirement
- To enable you to include different disciplinary pathways in your Modern Languages degree and to provide you with distinctive, stimulating and coherent patterns of learning.
- To provide you with a programme of study which is responsive to changes in the potential of Modern Languages studies and the needs of students and employers.
- To provide experience and opportunity for developing a range of transferable skills.
- To achieve an appropriate balance between supporting your learning and ensuring that you develop the range of skills needed to become an independent learner.

Programme Learning Outcomes

Knowledge and Understanding

Having successfully completed this programme you will be able to demonstrate knowledge and understanding of:

- A1 the structures, registers and varieties of the target languages, and of the structures required to analyse them;
- A2 at least one culture and society, other than your own, and the similarities and dissimilarities between this culture and society in comparison with your own;
- A3 one or more aspects of the culture, linguistic contexts, history, politics, geography, social and economic structures of this country;
- A4 significant, and sometime competing, methodologies, theories and issues relating to Linguistic Studies, Literary and Cultural Studies, and Social and Political Studies within the context of the Modern Languages curriculum;
- A5 the interaction of language, text, image and socio-cultural context;
- A6 social, political and/or gender aspects of the chosen culture(s) and field(s) of study;
- A7 the culture and society of the particular country where you have spent your year abroad.

Teaching and Learning Methods

- Coherent and progressive combination of field and section (language-specific) modules across all years of the programme.
- Progression from introductory, broadly contextualising modules in Part1 to more specialised modules in Part2, to an Investigative Project in Part3 and to research-based modules and the optional double-module dissertation in the final year.
- Enhancement of your knowledge and understanding through lectures and other tutor-led teaching. Lecturers also give extensive guidance, especially through reading lists and recommended reference and source material, the latter in the target language wherever possible.
- Developing your learning in the more student-led context of seminars, presentations, guided independent study and the preparation of written assignments. All courses use on-line material and some make use of discussion boards, where students and staff exchange knowledge and commentary. Depending on the assignment type, written, in-class and tutorial feedback is given to enable you to identify the strengths and weaknesses of your knowledge and to continue to develop it effectively.
- Taking progressively more responsibility for your own learning and for the conduct of classes, as you move through the Programme.
- You will be expected to acquire more unfamiliar and unpredictable knowledge of the target language culture and society during the year abroad in Part3, and to complete the Investigative Project, requiring sustained independent study, in this year. For students of English as a foreign language this progression will be ensured by your developing familiarity with English language and British culture and society.
- Studying in a European partner university, or undertaking a work placement, which could include teaching, during the year abroad.

Assessment methods

Your knowledge and understanding will be assessed in a variety of ways including examinations and coursework. Examinations test your ability to apply your knowledge and understanding, often asking you to present an argument within a very limited period of time. Coursework may include tasks such as critical literature reviews, case studies, essays, written reports, class presentations and group projects. These tasks test your ability to apply your knowledge and understanding of a subject, normally with full access to reference sources, and to construct an in-depth argument over a much longer period of time.

A particular feature of our programmes is the Investigative Project in Part3. This tests your ability to work independently on a clearly focused task designed to increase and demonstrate your understanding of your place of residence abroad. You are assessed on both the written text and on your performance in an oral presentation. Some students also opt to do a double-module Dissertation in the final year. The dissertation tests your in-depth and critical understanding of a topic which you have been able to investigate at length. If in final Part you opt to take a portfolio of modules appropriate to your pathway, rather than the dissertation, you will be tested on your critical knowledge and understanding at final-year level in a way which is structured around several smaller but equally demanding in-depth tasks.

Subject Specific Intellectual and Research Skills

Having successfully completed this programme you will be able to:

- B1 define, present and exemplify concepts;
- B2 identify concepts and data relevant to the task in hand;
- B3 select, synthesise and focus information from a range of sources in both English and your target language;
- B4 analyse and discuss theoretical questions;
- B5 apply knowledge, understanding and analysis critically to different topics;
- B6 formulate and defend personal judgements clearly and persuasively on the basis of evidence;
- B7 engage with subject matter and opinion in both breadth and depth;
- B8 understand, apply and evaluate different methodologies;
- B9 formulate and clarify critical questions
- B10 collect, analyse and present empirical data (where appropriate);
- B11 analyse and question assumptions and received opinion and propose alternatives.

Teaching and Learning Methods

- The ability to work in breadth and depth and to develop a range of cognitive skills is ensured by coherently structured pathways through a broad programme.
- Lectures will develop the skills of summarising and processing information, mentally and through note-taking.
- Cognitive skills are developed in student-led classes—seminars, presentations, discussions, group projects—from the outset of the programme. As you move into the later years, you will be required to take more responsibility for your classes and thus to develop and demonstrate the full range of cognitive skills in a public setting.
- You will develop cognitive skills through researching and writing essays throughout the programme. As you move into the third and fourth years of the programme, you will experience more challenging learning tasks—involving personal research, in-depth study and analysis and the production of long complex texts—in the form of the year abroad Investigative Project in Part3 and the option of a double-module dissertation in the final year.

- Depending on the assignment type, written, in-class and tutorial feedback is given to help you identify the strengths and weaknesses of your cognitive skills and to continue to develop them effectively through content, style and presentation.

Assessment methods

- Examinations and coursework. Examinations, whether written or oral, test your overall thinking skills in conditions where time and support for reflection are limited, as often in real life. Coursework assessment provides formative and summative testing against the intended learning outcomes of the module concerned.
- Assessment tasks are directly related to learning outcomes of modules and usually integrate thinking skills with language knowledge outcomes. For example, a class presentation and discussion on a specialist topic tests your ability to think through and organise your material in preparation, and to think on your feet in discussion, as well as testing your topic knowledge, interactive skills, strategic competence, and in some cases your linguistic accuracy and fluency.

Transferable and Generic Skills

Having successfully completed this programme you will be able to:

- C1 communicate effectively and confidently in English and in your target language, both orally and in writing, including being able to engage an audience in discussion and sustaining a long and complex piece of writing;
- C2 demonstrate intercultural competence;
- C3 plan and organise your learning through self-management;
- C4 exercise independence and initiative, particularly during the Year Abroad;
- C5 adhere to guidelines and deadlines;
- C6 work effectively alone and in collaboration with others to solve problems and/or carry out a task;
- C7 set and monitor goals, reflect on your own learning, and learn from feedback;
- C8 take notes and keep records;
- C9 use libraries, archives, learning resources and ICT to access relevant information;
- C10 produce writing in appropriate genres and to required conventions, including referencing and identification;
- C11 use ICT to produce documents and other
- C12 use ICT to communicate with staff and other students and to take part in on-line classes.

Teaching and Learning Methods

- The Part1 induction programme introduces you to learning strategies and methods, and also ensures that you sign up for training sessions in the use of ICT and for an introduction to the University Library. Your experience of all these induction activities is monitored during personal tutorials. Study skills and writing workshops are available throughout the Part on request.
- Broadly speaking in the fields, the emphasis in Part 1 is on developing basic bibliographical and referencing skills, producing written work according to academic conventions, on making individual and group presentations and developing an independent approach to learning. We also encourage you to develop good computer skills.
- In Part2 the stress is on developing the kind of research skills and independent learning strategies which will prepare you to make the most of the social and cultural experiences of your upcoming Year Abroad and for producing the Investigative Project. This includes working with others on group tasks.
- You will normally spend Part3 abroad, when the emphasis is on enhancing independence and initiative in studying a foreign language and culture, developing empirical research skills and producing a long project. The Modern Languages Year Abroad website successfully offers students who are abroad the opportunity to communicate with both staff at home and other students abroad.

- In the final Part we stress advanced research skills, including the evaluation of the roles of primary and secondary sources, and developing the ability to develop a sustained argument in writing and to give academic oral presentations.
- Written, in-class and tutorial feedback is given to help you to identify the strengths and weaknesses of your key skills and as the School implements student profiling, you will be required to monitor and evaluate your own progress in key skills with your personal tutor.

Assessment methods

- The effectiveness of your communication, learning and research skills is tested through both assessed coursework and examinations, which variously involve writing of different kinds, group and individual projects, and oral presentation and other interactive tasks.
- Your use of ICT implicitly contributes to your assessment since it is a necessary condition for presenting much of your work and for communicating with your tutors about your Investigative Project while you are abroad.
- The specialist skills of language learning are explicitly assessed through a wide range of tasks and activities

Subject Specific Practical Skills

In addition to the skills outlined you will be able to:

- Plan and manage an extended period of residence abroad
- Communicate effectively in the target language during that period of residence

Graduate Attributes

Graduate Attributes are the personal qualities, skills and understanding you can develop during your studies. They include but extend beyond your knowledge of an academic discipline and its technical proficiencies. Graduate Attributes are important because they equip you for the challenge of contributing to your chosen profession and may enable you to take a leading role in shaping the society in which you live.

We offer you the opportunity to develop these attributes through your successful engagement with the learning and teaching of your programme and your active participation in University life. The skills, knowledge and personal qualities that underpin the Graduate Attributes are supported by your discipline. As such, each attribute is enriched, made distinct and expressed through the variety of learning experiences you will experience. Your development of Graduate Attributes presumes basic competencies on entry to the University.

Your intensive knowledge of the histories, cultures and societies of specific countries combined with the intercultural competence acquired through living abroad means that you will have developed attributes for employability which extend beyond language skills.

Programme Structure

Programme details

The BA Modern Languages programme is offered only as a full-time programme. It requires 4 years, with Part3 spent in a country where one of the 3 languages studied is spoken.

The year abroad is seen as a particularly important feature of the programme. During the year abroad you have the opportunity to get to know a foreign culture at first hand, either as a student or in a work placement. As well as the daily opportunities you will have to practise using the foreign language, you are also ideally placed to get to know the people, and many lifelong friendships are made during this period. We aim to support you, mainly by frequent email contact, during the year abroad, and you will also be required to undertake an independent study, known as an Investigative Project.

Requirements

In each semester you will be required to follow four modules (a total of eight modules over the year). Three modules in each semester (four over the year) will be the language courses. These are core components of the programme. You will take one optional module per semester, which may be, where appropriate, an alternative subject (free elective)

In Part 2 you will take an additional module “Managing Research and Learning” (LANG2010), designed to prepare you for residence abroad and undertaking an extended research project. While you are abroad you will complete an Investigative Project (which counts as an additional final Part unit). The year abroad project counts for 30 credit points (LANG3005). Students will normally be expected to pass LANG 2010 before undertaking residence abroad.

The modules taken and the different options at different levels are mapped at the end of this document (please see Appendix 2).

- Part-time students take a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 6 modules per year.

The programme is divided into modules. Credit is awarded for achievement of the learning outcomes of each module studied. Full-time students take eight modules in each year, four in each semester, except in the year abroad. Single modules have a credit value of 7.5 ECTS (15 CATS), while double modules have a value of 15 ECTS (30 CATS). Each level has a total credit value of 60 ECTS (120 CATS), apart from the year abroad, which counts as 15 ECTS (30 CATS).

First Part modules contribute to the qualifying examination, which must be passed at honours level before a student may proceed to Part 2. A pass in this examination provides the possibility of exit with a Certificate of Higher Education.

Second Part modules contribute to the Part 2 examination, a pass in this examination providing the possibility of exit with a Diploma of Higher Education. Second Part modules are single-weighted in the calculation of the final degree result.

The year abroad (Part 3) counts as one final Part module in the calculation of the final degree result, i.e. 15 ECTS (30 CATS).

Final Part modules contribute to the result of the final examination, as do those awarded in years 2 and 3, but they are double-weighted in the calculation of the final degree result.

Detailed below are the compulsory and optional units for the programme.

Three units in each semester (six over the year) will be the three different language courses. Students will follow one optional module in each semester, including alternative subjects / free electives.

Availability of Modules

The information contained in programme specification is correct at the time it was published. Typically, around a quarter of optional modules do not run due to low interest or unanticipated changes in staff availability. If we do have insufficient numbers of students interested in an optional module, this may not be offered. If an optional module will not be run, we will advise you as soon as possible and help you choose an alternative module.

Part Three (Year Abroad)

Students will spend the year abroad in a country where the chosen language is spoken, either as:

- an English language assistant

- studying on a University course
- on an approved work placement

Students will also be required to complete an Investigative Project (LANG3005 – 30 credits). This is an independent study project (6,000 words) supervised by a member of staff and written in the target language. University regulations include the requirement for students to undertake independent study, normally by means of a dissertation, extended report, essay or project at final year level. Students who fail the residence abroad project therefore have two options: they can either resubmit the project, in which case the maximum mark can achieve is 40%, or they can opt to do a final year dissertation, which they will have to pass in order to graduate. Students who have not achieved a pass mark in either the project or the dissertation will not be eligible to graduate. Where students have been unable to complete the residence abroad project during their third Part due to circumstances requiring special consideration, they may either submit the project during Part 4 or choose to do a final year dissertation. In the latter case alternative assessments will have to be submitted to validate the year abroad. Submitting the year abroad project in Part 4 does not preclude students from choosing the final year dissertation.

Criteria for admission

University Commitment

The University will at all times seek to operate admissions regulations that are fair and are in accordance with the law of the United Kingdom, and the University's Charter, Statutes, Ordinances and Regulations.

This includes specific compliance with legislation relating to discrimination (e.g. Equality Act 2010) and the University's Equal Opportunities Policy Statement. This includes a commitment that the University will:

- actively assist groups that experience disadvantage in education and employment to benefit from belonging to the University
- actively seek to widen participation to enable students that do not traditionally participate in Higher Education to do so;
- ensure that admission procedures select students fairly and appropriately according to their academic ability and that the procedure is monitored and regularly reviewed.

The University's Admissions Policy applies equally to all programmes of study. The following are the typical entry criteria to be used for selecting candidates for admission. The University's approved equivalencies for the requirements listed below will also be acceptable.

Mature applicants

Studying for a degree later in life can be extremely rewarding and mature students are often among our most successful.

If you are over 21 and feel you would benefit from degree-level studies, we can be more flexible about our entry requirements. For full-time courses, selectors will expect you to demonstrate your commitment by means of some recent serious study, for example, one or two A level passes, successful completion of an Open University foundation course or an appropriate Access course. Your application will be considered on individual merit and you may be asked to attend an interview.

Career Opportunities

Graduates of Modern Languages have a wide variety of employment options to choose from, some specifically using their language skills, others that draw on the range of employability skills developed during their programme. Graduates from the University of Southampton have progressed to careers ranging from Teaching and Translating to Marketing and Accountancy. Events and Hospitality, Retail and Sales and the Media are other popular choices. Our destinations survey shows that most of our graduates work in London or the South East, with many working for internationally recognised organisations. Some graduates move overseas to pursue careers in countries where the languages they have studied are spoken.

For those choosing further study, subjects pursued by Southampton graduates include Interpreting and Translating, PGCE, Law, Accountancy, Management and International Relations. Modern Languages students develop vital skills in addition to a high level of language competence that facilitate this varied choice of employment and study options, including the ability to gather and interpret information, to lead and work within teams and to develop opinions and communicate ideas and intercultural competence. The year abroad promotes a global mind set highly attractive to employers as well as resilience and independence.

External Examiners(s) for the programme

The External Examiners for ML are specific to each language, so the Examiner will depend on the languages chosen. Linguistic and general Language modules are split between External Examiners.

Name: Professor Martyn Cornick	Institution: University of Birmingham
Name: Dr Damien Fabien Remi Gaucher	Institution: University of Exeter
Name: Dr Joanne Sayner	Institution: University of Birmingham
Name: Dr Ulrike Bavendiek	Institution: University of Liverpool
Name: Mr James Michael Lambert	Institution: University of Leicester
Name: Dr Federico Faloppa	Institution: University of Reading

Students must not contact External Examiner(s) directly, and external examiners have been advised to refer any such communications back to the University. Students should raise any general queries about the assessment and examination process for the programme with their Course Representative, for consideration through Staff: Student Liaison Committee in the first instance, and Student representatives on Staff: Student Liaison Committees will have the opportunity to consider external examiners' reports as part of the University's quality assurance process.

External examiners do not have a direct role in determining results for individual students, and students wishing to discuss their own performance in assessment should contact their personal tutor in the first instance.

Please note: This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if s/he takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information can be found in the programme handbook (or other appropriate guide) or online at <http://www.southampton.ac.uk/ml/> .
