Skills gained through your degree

During your studies you have developed a range of transferable skills and abilities valued by employers. In addition to capabilities specific to the particular discipline you have studied, these include the skills and abilities required to:

- apply your learning in different contextual frameworks
- generate ideas, concepts, proposals, solutions or arguments independently and collaboratively in response to set briefs and self-initiated activity
- use creative thinking in observing, investigating, enquiring, visualising and making, and to develop ideas through to material outcomes
- apply resourcefulness and entrepreneurial skills to your own practice or that of others
- employ materials, media, techniques, methods, technologies and tools with skill and imagination whilst observing good working practices
- study independently, set goals, manage your own workload and meet deadlines
- anticipate and accommodate change, and handle ambiguity, uncertainty, and unfamiliarity
- analyse information and experiences, formulate independent judgements, and articulate reasoned arguments through reflection, review and evaluation
- interact effectively with others through collaboration, collective endeavour and negotiation
- articulate ideas and information comprehensibly in visual, oral and written forms
- present ideas and work to audiences in a range of situations
- source, navigate, select, retrieve, evaluate, manipulate and manage information
- select and employ communication and information technologies

In a competitive graduate labour market, it is important that you are able to demonstrate the key skills that you have developed through your degree programme.

Reflecting upon the skills you have gained and your skill strengths can also be helpful in career decision making. The following resources can help you to understand the skills gained from your degree.

Understanding your skills

Your course learning outcomes – Your course modules contain aims and learning outcomes. These are useful in assisting you to recognise and reflect upon the skills developed during your studies.

Links to selected professional bodies and associations

Professional bodies offer careers information and jobs boards, and your degree accreditation may mean free or reduced student membership. Many of the resources are open access, please find a selection below:

British Fashion Council

The British Fashion Council was formed in 1983 out of the Fashion Industry Action Group, an ad hoc group created in 1981. It aims to showcase British designers and develop London's position as a major player in the international fashion arena.

The Textile Institute

The Textile Institute is a professional body for those engaged in clothing, footwear, and textiles. The Institute has individual and corporate members in over 60 countries covering all sectors and all disciplines in clothing, footwear and textiles.

UK Fashion and Textile Industry (UKFT)

The UKFT is the most inclusive network for fashion and textile companies in the UK. They bring together designers, manufacturers, suppliers, agents and retailers to promote their businesses and industry, both in the UK and throughout the world

Chartered Institute of Marketing (CIM)

The CIM is the leading international professional marketing body and the only one which can award Chartered Marketer status. With 35,000 members worldwide CIM's networks have an unrivalled breadth, depth and diversity.

Design Council

The Design Council's purpose is to make life better by design. They work from grassroots to Government, delivering programmes, producing world-class research and influencing policy. Uniquely, their programmes cover the built environment, public sector design and social innovation, and business innovation.

UK Interactive Entertainment Entertainment (Ukie)

Ukie is the only trade body for the UK's games and interactive entertainment industry. They are a not-for-profit and represent businesses of all sizes from small start-ups to large multinational developers, publishers and service companies, working across online, mobile apps, consoles, PC, eSports, VR and AR.

The Artist Information Company (a-n)

a-n is the largest artists' membership organisation in the UK with over 25,000 members. They support artists and those who work with them in many practical ways, acting on behalf of their membership and the visual arts sector to improve artists' livelihoods. They have a reputation for providing compelling insights and playing a catalytic role in influencing and informing cultural policy.
