Programme Overview

Brief outline of the programme
The heritage industry is a major and growing contributor to the global economy, employing increasing numbers of graduates and postgraduates in a wide variety of heritage related fields. This programme is a pathways-based MA, aimed to cover the many facets of cultural heritage from the tangible built environment and archaeological record to the intangible heritage of art, film and literature, and includes both terrestrial and maritime heritage. There is a strong emphasis on the development of skills and specialisms in Heritage and Museums, Heritage and Public History, and Heritage and The Arts. You may choose to focus on one of these areas, or alternatively you may prefer to acquire a broad range of skills across these specialisms. The course will cover the theoretical frameworks and practical considerations of tangible and intangible heritage from global to local perspectives with opportunities to acquire practical knowledge of the sector through field trips, engagement with practitioners and the opportunity to apply for a placement with one of our heritage partners.
Programme content will vary depending on the specialism that you follow. Each specialism is consolidated by means of compulsory modules that offer firm foundations in your chosen area. This is complemented by diverse optional modules that allow you the flexibility to build a bespoke skill-set appropriate to your chosen career path.

- The MA Cultural Heritage offers you a choice of modules from all specialisms, with no requirement to focus on a specific area. It covers the theoretical, legislative and ethical frameworks relating to terrestrial and maritime heritage; the key issues and debates; how heritage is managed and presented, and a wide range of optional modules for you to pursue your specific interests.

- The specialism in Heritage and Museums also includes elements that will give you a detailed behind-the-scenes look at how museums communicate the past, drawing on our established links with local museum and heritage partners. Optional modules give you the opportunity for you to explore themes or specific skills in a wide variety of heritage contexts to suit your interests.

- The specialism in Heritage and Public History also includes elements that give you a detailed understanding of how history is presented to non-academic audiences. Optional modules give you the opportunity to explore themes in History or other heritage related subjects.

- The specialism in Heritage and the Arts also includes elements that give you practical skills in communicating in a variety of genres across a variety of platforms used in the cultural and creative industries including publishing, broadcasting, heritage management, and arts curation. Optional modules give you the opportunity for you to explore themes in literary, cinema, and music heritage.

Important aspects of the programme are available across all specialisms. These include the core Global Heritage module, the Maritime Museums and Heritage Management module, and the Heritage Dissertation/Professional Project modules which should focus on an area of your specialism, if you have chosen one. Furthermore, modules from each pathway are open to you as options, regardless of your chosen specialism. By these means you will be able to build a personalised and flexible programme tailored to your needs.

Please note: As a research-led University, we undertake a continuous review of our programmes to ensure quality enhancement and to manage our resources. As a result, this programme may be revised during a student’s period of registration; however, any revision will be balanced against the requirement that the student should receive the educational service expected. Please read our Disclaimer to see why, when and how changes may be made to a student’s programme.

Programmes and major changes to programmes are approved through the University’s programme validation process which is described in the University's Quality handbook.

Your contact hours will vary depending on your module/option choices. Full information about contact hours is provided in individual module profiles.

Learning and teaching

This programme makes use of the full range of teaching and learning methods; from didactic lectures to student-led seminars, field trips and project work. Care has been taken to develop a syllabus that will speak to a variety of learning styles and account for the varied backgrounds that students on this programme may come from. We have explicitly sought to integrate traditional academic modes of delivery with those best suited to subjects interfacing with professional practice. Thus we have included seminars and group work as well as field trips to relevant heritage sites and institutions as part of the programme in addition to traditional lectures.

Your contact hours will vary depending on your module/option choices. Full information about contact hours is provided in individual module profiles.

Assessment

On this course you will be assessed by a variety of means, depending on the modules you choose to take, whatever your specialism. This will normally include: writing academic essays and articles; preparation of professional quality reports; research projects; laboratory and field activities; an individual 20,000-word dissertation or professional project, as well as presentations. This diversity of assessment has been designed to provide you with the skills to operate in both the academic and commercial worlds.
Special Features of the programme

A key feature of this programme is the consideration of maritime as well as terrestrial heritage. This includes the heritage of the intertidal zone, underwater heritage and the intangible heritage of maritime cultures.

This programme includes opportunities for credit-bearing short placements within organisations involved in heritage management, archives, fieldwork projects and/or galleries/museums. The placements are typically organised by the University, and may be available to students following all specialisms, or crossing between them. Note, however, a limited number of placements is offered each year and are allocated by a competitive process. To reflect the vocational content of the course, a professional project may be taken instead of a more traditional research dissertation. This may include, as a component, a more practical outcome (e.g. exhibition design or catalogue, professional report, guidebook, website etc) than a traditional dissertation.

Please note: As a research-led University, we undertake a continuous review of our programmes to ensure quality enhancement and to manage our resources. As a result, this programme may be revised during a student's period of registration; however, any revision will be balanced against the requirement that the student should receive the educational service expected. Please read our Disclaimer to see why, when and how changes may be made to a student's programme.

Programmes and major changes to programmes are approved through the University's programme validation process which is described in the University's Quality handbook.

Educational Aims of the Programme

The aims of the programme are to: To provide a thorough grounding in the aims, objectives, theoretical frameworks, and methodologies adopted by heritage practitioners and academics. This programme will provide the necessary skills and knowledge to enable you to pursue further academic research or to gain employment in a wide variety of heritage roles.

The aims of the programme are:
- to enable you to develop general and specific research and practical skills relevant to cultural heritage;
- to develop a critical awareness of the potential and limitations of key forms of evidence and approaches;
- to prepare you for further research and/or professional practice;
- to provide you with the ability to apply detailed theoretical, ethical and legislative frameworks, knowledge and methodologies to an understanding of heritage;
- to develop a comprehensive understanding of a range of general approaches to heritage, both terrestrial and maritime, and provide you with the confidence to evaluate and develop new approaches to its interpretation;
- to stimulate discussion and critique of past, current and future conceptual approaches to cultural heritage;
- to apply all the above skills and approaches to your chosen specialism;
- to enable you to work independently, exercising self-direction and problem solving capabilities to a high level.

MA Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums): in addition to the above, this specialism will provide you with an understanding and experience of how heritage is interpreted, presented and protected, and the role museums play in these.

MA Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public history): in addition to the above, this specialism will provide you with knowledge of the differences between academic and public history and how history is communicated to a non-academic audience by a variety of institutions.

MA Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts): in addition to the above, this specialism will provide you with knowledge and practical skills in communicating in a variety of genres across a variety of platforms used in the cultural and creative industries including publishing, broadcasting, heritage management, and arts curation.
Programme Learning Outcomes

Having successfully completed this programme you will be able to demonstrate knowledge and understanding of:

Knowledge and Understanding

A7. (For Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) a comprehensive understanding of the specific genres used in oral and written communication in the creative and cultural industries.

Teaching and Learning Methods

A variety of teaching and learning methods are employed throughout the modules on this programme to support different learning styles:

- Lectures will be used to deliver theoretical, empirical and practical aspects of cultural heritage research;
- Seminars and discussion groups will be used to explore specific issues and concepts relevant to diverse areas of study;
- Fieldtrips and visits will introduce you to real-world case studies, heritage institutions and practitioners;
- Dissertation supervision will provide small group/individual tutorial contact.

These activities will be present on all pathways, although the balance between them may vary.

Assessment Methods

Your knowledge and understanding will be assessed through written work, project reports and oral presentations. At each stage of assessment, feedback will be provided to assess your progress and identify additional areas to consider and develop. Written assignments will vary from research proposals or short essays to longer research papers and ultimately a dissertation based on an original research project or a professional project. These assessments will be present on all pathways, although the balance between them may vary.
Subject Specific Intellectual and Research Skills

On successful completion of this programme you will be able to:

B1. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) critique and present your own evaluation of key issues relating to cultural heritage;

B2. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) evaluate and apply appropriate theoretical frameworks and practical approaches to relevant debates;

B3. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) integrate the results from your own research or fieldwork with that of others to answer specific questions and develop new hypotheses;

B4. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) plan, develop and implement creative solutions to heritage issues through the application of appropriate skills and interpretative frameworks;

B5. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) assimilate and synthesise broad theories and models relating to the management and protection of terrestrial and underwater cultural heritage;

B6. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) design and execute an independent original research project or professional project.

B7. (For Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums) only) evaluate critically museum presentations and prepare exhibition design proposals for non-professional audiences.

B8. (For Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History) only) evaluate critically the difference between the aims and methodologies of public and academic history, the communication of historical knowledge and understanding by bodies outside academe.

B9. (For Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) research, distil and rework primary and secondary materials in a way that is accessible to a wide range of audiences.

Teaching and Learning Methods

Activities are designed to enhance your intellectual, practical and research skills, and support a range of learning styles. They will include lectures, seminars (student- and lecturer-led), tutorials, individual and group projects (desk-, laboratory- and field-based), oral presentations and the design and execution of your dissertation or professional project. These activities will be present on all pathways, although the balance between them may vary.

Assessment Methods

This programme will enable you to work across a broad range of assessment methods. These include traditional research-led essays, oral presentations and reports derived from desk-, laboratory- and/or field-based work. You will also have to plan and execute your dissertation or extended project. These assessments will be present on all pathways, although the balance between them may vary.
Transferable and Generic Skills

On successful completion of this programme you will be able to:

C1. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) evaluate critically evidence on paper or in the field;

C2. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) work effectively alone and/or as part of a team to meet deadlines;

C3. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) apply and develop key skills in critical thinking and analysis, verbal and written communication, information-handling and professional presentation;

C4. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) communicate effectively with a variety of audiences;

C5. (For Cultural Heritage Studies, Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Museums), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and Public History), Cultural Heritage Studies (Heritage and the Arts) only) independently research a specific topic in depth and present your results.

Teaching and Learning Methods

Activities are designed to enhance your transferable skills, and support a range of learning styles. Groupwork and field elements emphasise teamwork and communication, as well as information handling and evaluation. Seminars and discussion groups will provide opportunities to develop and express arguments, and encourage critical thinking. Dissertation and project research-planning, execution and supervision will allow in-depth investigation of a chosen specialism. These activities will be present on all pathways, although the balance between them may vary.

Assessment Methods

This programme will enable you to work across a broad range of assessment methods, which will promote embedded transferable skills. Essays and oral presentations will develop communication skills, while desk and field-based reports will reflect evaluative skills, time-management and collaboration. Independent project planning and execution are assessed in particular by means of the dissertation/professional project. Critical thinking and analysis are embedded within all assessments. These forms of assessment will be present on all pathways, although the balance between them may vary.
Programme Structure

Information about pre and co-requisites is included in individual module profiles.

Where optional modules have been specified, the following is an indicative list of available optional modules, which are subject to change each academic year. Please note in some instances modules have limited spaces available.

Cultural Heritage Studies

Part I

Please note that where a list of options has been given, this is an indicative list and we cannot guarantee to offer every option each year. Other level 7 modules can be taken as options by arrangement with the course coordinator.

Your programme of study may include up to 30 credits (CATS) drawn from level 6 (undergraduate year 3) modules that have not previously been studied.

Postgraduate Certificate Learning Outcomes

Having successfully completed the Postgraduate Certificate you will be able to demonstrate:
- An awareness of a range of different types of cultural heritage
- An appreciation of the key issues and debates relating to cultural heritage and related subjects

And will be able to:

Associated with your programme you will be able to access:
- relevant computer hardware, software and datasets;
- fieldtrips to various heritage sites
- extensive collections and archives (e.g. of archaeological artefacts, films, specialist documents etc.)
- an academic advisor and dissertation/project supervisor;
- opportunities for professional placements (note there are limited numbers of these).

Methods for evaluating the quality of teaching and learning

You will have the opportunity to have your say on the quality of the programme in the following ways:

- Completing student evaluation questionnaires for each module of the programme.
- Acting as a student representative on various committees, e.g. Staff/Student Liaison Committees, School Programmes Committee OR providing comments to your student representative to feedback on your behalf.
- Serving as a student representative on Faculty Scrutiny Groups for programme validation.
- Taking part in programme validation meetings by joining a panel of students to meet with the Faculty Scrutiny Group.

Further details on the University's quality assurance processes are given in the Quality Handbook.

Career Opportunities

Graduates from this programme will be suited to work in a wide range roles in the heritage and tourism sectors. These will include positions in government heritage bodies, private consultancy, non-governmental organisations and other heritage organisations (e.g. museums and galleries).

External Examiner(s) for the programme

Name: Dr James Cole - University of Brighton

Name: Dr Robert Hosfield - University of Reading

Name: Dr Michael W Scott - London School of Economics and Political Science

Students must not contact External Examiner(s) directly, and external examiners have been advised to refer any such communications back to the University. Students should raise any general queries about the assessment and examination process for the programme with their Course Representative, for consideration through Staff: Student Liaison Committee in the first instance, and Student representatives on Staff: Student Liaison Committees will have the opportunity to consider external examiners' reports as part of the University's quality assurance process.

External examiners do not have a direct role in determining results for individual students, and students wishing to discuss their own performance in assessment should contact their Personal Academic Tutor in the first instance.

Please note: This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if they take full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information can be found in the programme handbook.
Appendix 1:

Students are responsible for meeting the cost of essential textbooks, and of producing such essays, assignments, laboratory reports and dissertations as are required to fulfil the academic requirements for each programme of study. In addition to this, students registered for this programme also have to pay for:
